Mike Booth Auckland Jazz Orchestra

The Auckland Jazz Orchestra draws from a collective of Auckland's best musicians exploring the potential of a Big Band. Founded early 2009 the band is currently conducted by Tim Atkinson. The band is lucky that their 'book' is filled by a wide range of NZ compositions and arrangements.

Founding member Mike Booth says.. "We have an opportunity to take a musical legacy and transform it through the New Zealand experience into a locally based creative force.

The aim is for a contemporary originality. Big Band Jazz is a powerful art form, muscular and hard swinging, sometimes bluesy and boisterous, but also capable of lush harmonies and evocative beauty..."

There is an 'open door' policy to composers and arrangers who are interested in writing for the band and it is the intention that this will generate local composition and repertoire.

28th August*Society Jazz Men

The Society Jazzmen were formed in 1969 and have been entertaining people of all ages ever since. They have made many TV appearances, radio broadcasts, and have travelled New Zealand and the Pacific playing their own style of music which can probably best be described as "British/American Dixieland".

The main attribute of the band is that after 30 years, they are still full of enthusiasm for their music, and it is obvious when watching them that they also thoroughly enjoy themselves.

The Society Jazzmen are not just musicians, they are also entertainers, and they guarantee to get any audience tapping their feet and involved in the show. The pictures tell the story!
